

Procedures and Form for the Request of an In-Range Progression (IRP)
For Employees Represented by the Teamsters Local 2010 Unit 6

Article 24.5 of the Agreement between the Board of Trustees of the California State University and the Teamsters Local 2010 defines an In-Range Progression as “an increase within a salary range that is not given for merit.”

Requests may be submitted by the employee or manager and are routed through the appropriate administrator for funding approval and review, to determine if the submitted justification meets the appropriate criteria. The minimum IRP salary increase is 3%. However, at no time can the amount exceed the maximum of the salary range of the employee’s classification.

Following are criteria cited, but not limited to in the Agreement including information that will assist in the development of the justification:

- Long-term Service
- Assigned application of enhanced skill or skills: What skills have been acquired and/or enhanced? Are these new/enhanced skills critical in carrying out the requirements of the position? Are the enhanced skills applied in an effective and productive manner, thus adding value to the University? Are they on-going, not temporary? Do the duties of the position include on-going lead responsibilities, not included in the classification standard?
- Equity issues or other salary related criteria: Explain the nature of the salary issue. How is the position critical to the mission of the University? If there is an equity issue related to other substantially similar and critical positions within the department or division/university, provide specifics.
- Retention issues: How is the position critical to the mission of the University? What would be the impact upon the University if the incumbent left? Does employee have an offer of employment outside the university that pays above his/her current salary? (Must be accompanied by documented external competitive employment offer.)
- Employee performance: In what way is the employee’s performance exceptional? How does the employee’s exceptional performance add value to the University? Provide specific examples.
- New lead work or new project coordination functions given to an employee on an on-going basis by an appropriate administrator where the classification standard/series do not specifically list lead work as a typical duty or responsibility.
- Out-of-classification work that does not warrant a reclassification.
- Increased workload: Is this a permanent change to the workload? Does it impact the position significantly?

The effective date for an in-range progression will be the first of the pay period following its approval. Employee initiated in-range progression requests shall be submitted to the appropriate administrator before being forwarded to Human Resources. An employee shall not submit a request for an in-range progression prior to twelve (12) months following the receipt of a denial of a request for an in-range progression, or prior to 12 months from the effective date of an award of an in-range progression. If an administrator has not forwarded the request to Human Resources within thirty (30) days, the employee can file the request directly with Human Resources.

The final determination regarding the award of an in-range progression shall be final and shall not be subject to Article 9. Grievance Procedure. Employee notification will come from the appropriate Vice President's Office with a cc to the Office of Human Resources. In-range progression review of employee requests shall be completed within ninety (90) days after the request is received in Human Resources.

The following are the specific salary increase guidelines for in-range progressions.

- 3% - 6% - This range represents the typical increase for additional responsibilities permanently assigned to the position and/or the acquisition of new enhanced skills.
- 7% - 10% - Increases in this range are usually due to significant organizational changes or specific internal or external comparability factors.
- Request above 10% - Increases of this magnitude are extremely rare. The requesting official must provide a detailed rationale related to the need for such a significant increase. The rationale must outline the organizational necessity, relevant internal comparison, relevant external comparison and market data, and a verification of the exceptional skills and abilities of the employee.
